It starts from the premise that all behavior is contextualized, and conversely, that individuals' and groups' behaviors constitute the social and cultural landscape. Our research spans a wide range of different methods and contexts, varying from controlled laboratory experiments that provide insight into the effects of specific contexts on psychological functioning , to real-life research in schools, organizations, and the society as a whole.	Center for Social and Cultural Psychology (Ku leoven University)	(۱۴) هلند

yukikou@educ.kyoto-u.ac.jp	Yukiko UCHIDA (Ph. D.) Associate Professor 	Researchers at Culture-KoNet study how culture and the mind work together. We conduct cultural psychological empirical research on how cultural settings shape people's emotions, cognitions, motivations, and relationships. In addition to full-time researchers and graduate students, we also connect researchers from around the world for both short-term and long-term collaborative visits. We work together on both basic research and applied problems.	Cultural-Kokoro Network	(۱۸) ژاپن
